“ The word "legend" is used way too often in describing a great athlete, but this word certainly describes a great lifter and person in Art. As great a competitor and lifter as he was, he was (is) just as great a person off the platform. He is still an inspiration today to anyone associated with the sport of weightlifting, and all who know him for that matter. Thank you for your contribution to the sport and the friendships you developed over the course of your life. Rest in peace!

“ Art was a good man, and a heck of a weightlifter. I enjoyed every time I shared the platform with him, and was always amazed at what he was still doing at his age; I was glad I got to witness it. God Bless, Art, and rest in peace.
