“ Lucci cousins,

Sam Jr.'s character was defined by the greatest generation. He carried those traits into his home and built a legacy of love, respect and service to others. He was blessed with skills in many aspects that others would envy. Yet, he shared those skills with others and the gifts were abundant. A long tenure of service to his community was a part of his character, but he is most admired for creating family traditions and holding them in the highest regard. I believe he was most comfortable in the company of his midst of family gatherings. For many of us, he was the best part of the family reunion. A member of the greatest generation who treated you as if YOU were a very important person in the room. We will miss him dearly and in every conversation we will always remember him with joy in our hearts, because he brought us so much joy over the years.

With love, Danny Burns
